DR. JEROME M. SACHS
Dean of the College

This, Chicago Teachers' College-North's first yearbook, is dedicated to Dr. Benjamin C. Willis for our birth; to Dr. Roy N. Jervis for our childhood; to Dr. Jerome M. Sachs for guiding us to maturity. Now and in the future, the graduates of Chicago Teachers' College-North will be grateful for their leadership.

Growth

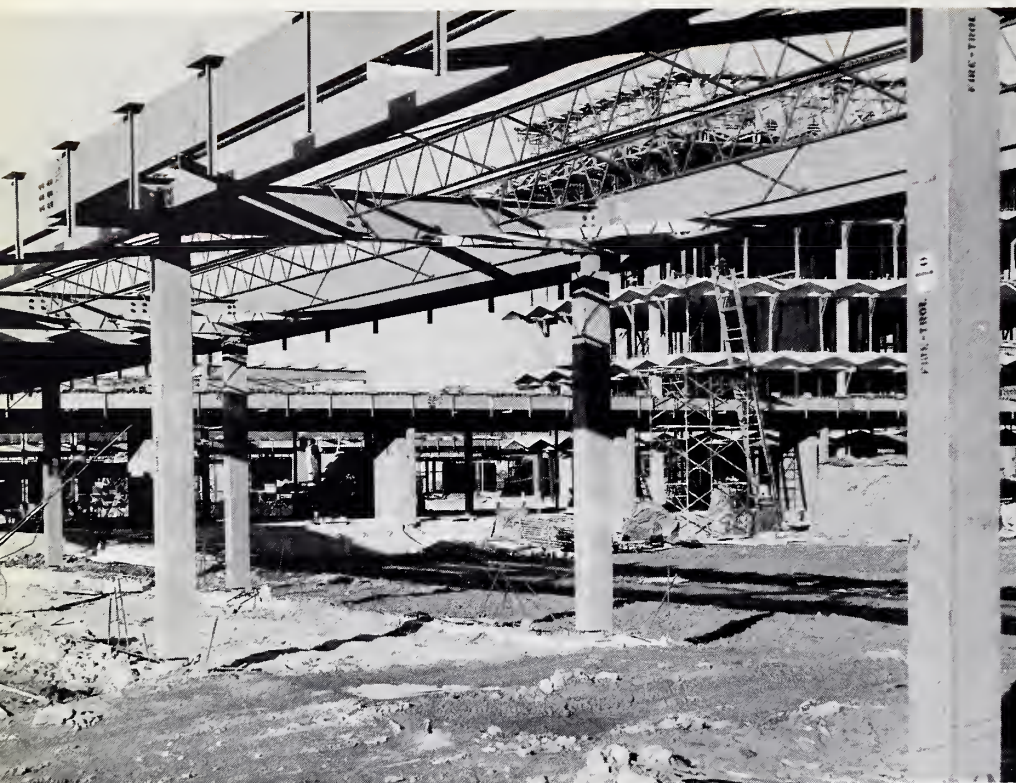

The ground breaking for the five and one half million dollar Chicago Teachers' College North occurred on March 31, 1960. Members of the school board at that time, appearing left to right in the picture: Mrs. W. E. Green, Dr. J. L. Reichert, Mr. E. F. Scheffler, and Mrs. J. B. Allen; turned the first spades of soil as Mr. L. Perkins and Dr. B. C. Willis looked on.

Other people participating in the ground breaking ceremonies were Mr. Phillip Brotherton, architect, and other community leaders, as seen in this picture.

Although snow still covered the ground, construction of the multi-million dollar school was begun. Even in these early stages, it is possible to follow the distinctive hexagonal forms created by architect Phillip Brotherton. In this view facing northwest toward Bryn Mawr, the sweeping, ultra-modern designs are prominent.

As construction advanced, steel columns and cross beams were added to the scene. The rapidly developing structure was, as yet, only a promise of things to come. Ladders and scaffolds are evidence of the workers who are building the sprawling giant.

The Beehive is a mere skeleton of wooden posts and beams, but growth is indicated by the progressively more complete appearance of the stories as the framework is traced toward the ground.

The over-all view was now cluttered with material soon to become a door post or window frame, but looking discarded and almost forgotten at this point.

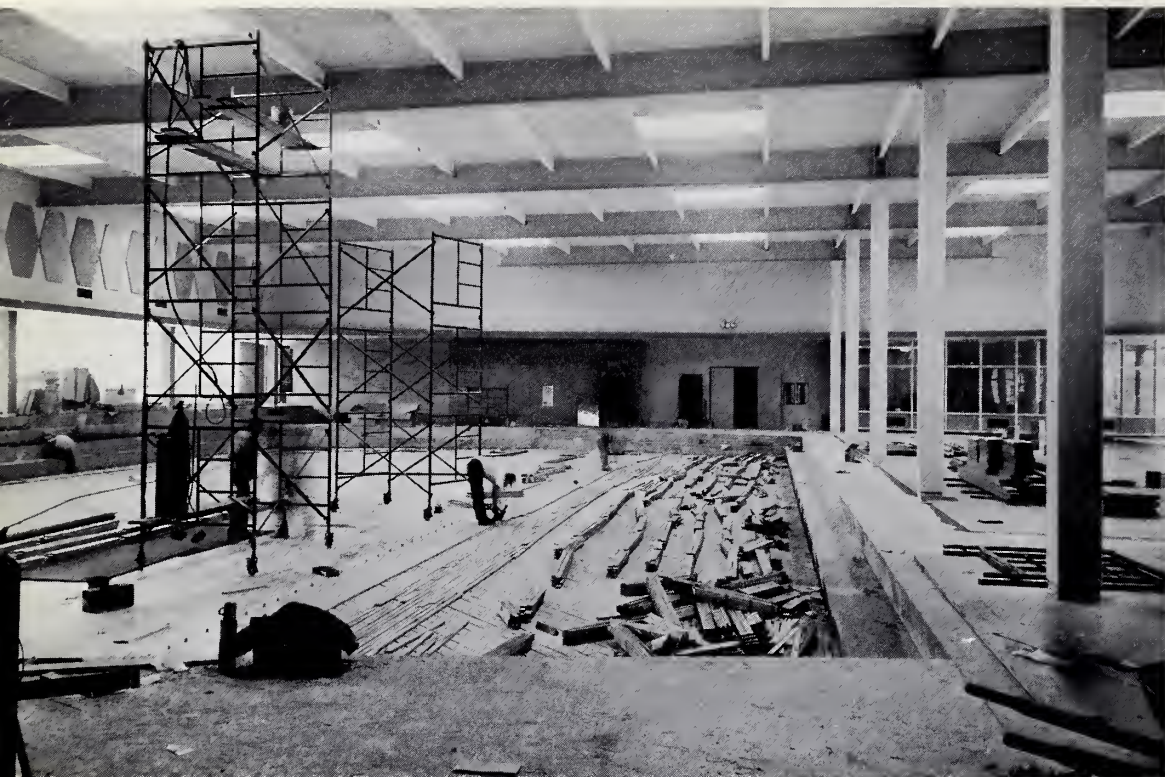

These two shots of the Beehive illustrate the development of the structure. Men can be seen on the top floor measuring and placing boards for the peaks which mark the Beehive.

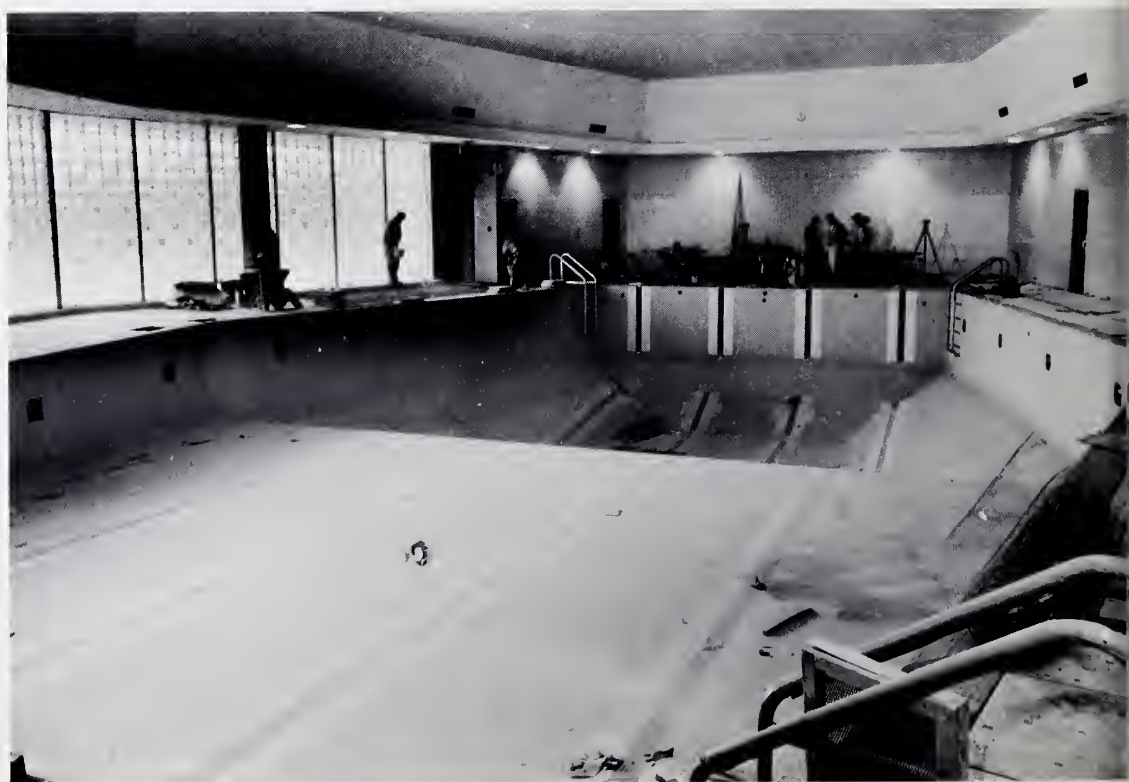

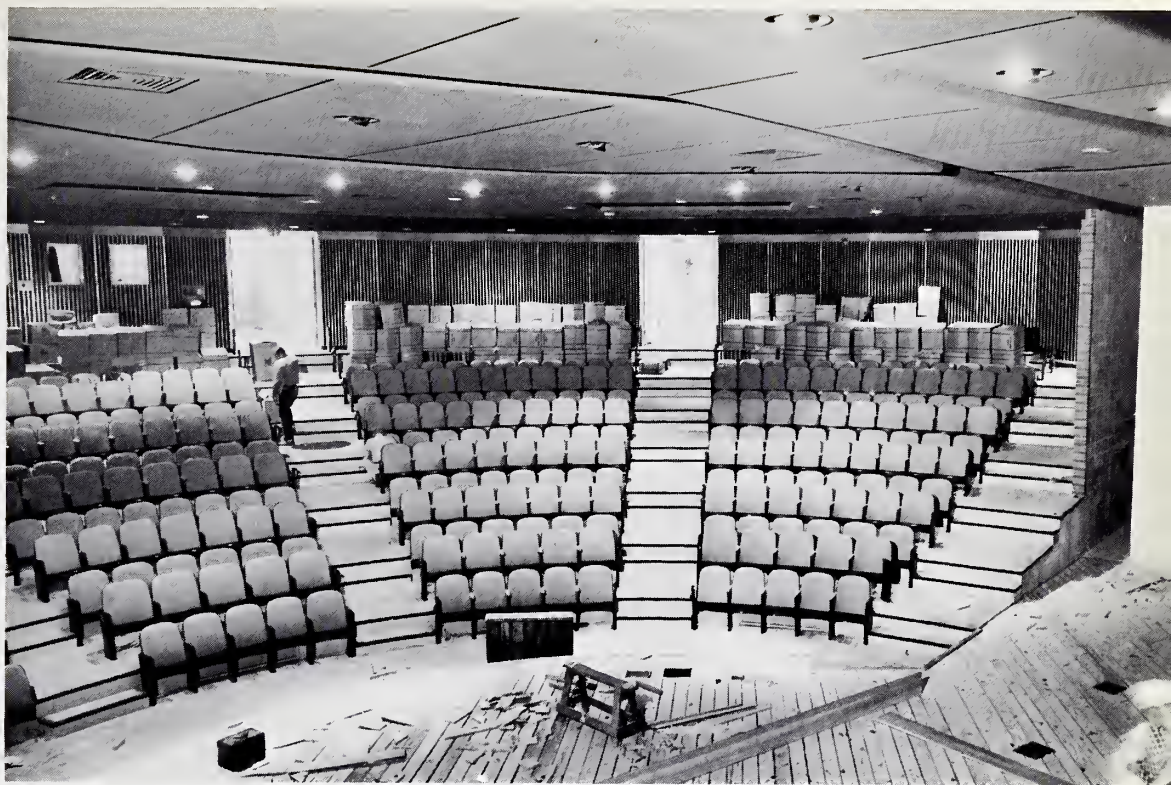

Here, with the preliminary construction completed, bricks and mortar stand in the snow waiting to be added to the frame. Canvas covers the stacks of bricks, and sheets of plastic enclose the lower floors to protect them from inclement weather.

Here workmen are busy preparing the gymnasium (above) and the swimming pool (below) for the many physical education classes soon to use them. The bi-level gym floor is the latest in convenience and utility. The extensive use of glass in both areas lends a feeling of cleanliness.

These panoramic shots of the auditorium illustrate the freshness and ingenuity of design. The wings of the stage seem to reach toward an audience to convey a sense of closeness during a dramatic presentation. The ascending floor assures every member of the audience a clear view of the stage.

The outer shell of the Beehive is now complete and awaits only furnishing and landscaping. Lights burn brightly in every office to diminish the darkness from the clouds overhead.

This is the Beehive—complete and in use. Rolling green surrounds the glass-studded, white-shuttered structure, but behind the serene looking facade, the faculty and staff are at work creating a sound, meaningful curriculum.

Chicago Teachers' College-North—complete and ready for occupancy. When the school opened its doors on September 6, 1961 with an enrollment of 1,100 students, it was stocked with one million dollars worth of electronic equipment designed to help "establish a community of scholars," as Dean Roy N. Jervis expressed it. The school was staffed with 74 faculty members; a 15 to 1 student-teacher relationship. Of the instructors, 36 were transfers from the Sabin and Foreman branches. All of the 74 had achieved M.A. degrees. Of these, half had earned their Ph. D.'s.

Dr. R. C. Jones, Rt. Rev. Monsignor William E. McManus, Dr. Norman Burns, Dr. Benjamin C. Willis, Mayor Richard J. Daley, and Mr. Thomas J. Murray.

The college was dedicated on May 24, 1962 at a ceremony held in the school auditorium. It was the first dedication of a teacher's college in the United States in 80 years. The ceremony attracted the foremost Chicago dignitaries including Mayor Richard J. Daley and Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Willis. They were welcomed by Dr. Roy N. Jervis, chairman of the executive council; Dr. Jerome M. Sachs, Dean of academic affairs; Dr. Murray Tondow, Dean of Educational Research and Development; and Dr. Matt L. McBride, Dean of College Operational Service.

Dr. Willis addresses the gathering.

Sargent Shriver, former president of the Chicago Board of Education who is now serving as director of the United States Peace Corps.

R. Sargent Shriver addresses the gathering as Dr. McBride looks on.

The club publishes a magazine which offers a showcase for student and faculty writing achievement. Working with a four member guidance council, the club maintains a bridge between literature majors and the faculty.

The club provides a meaningful link between curricular and co-curricular activities by means of Russian records, songs, films, and literature.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club at C.T.C.-North has a two-fold purpose. It encourages its members to practice their Spanish with native speakers through its many activities. Such activities have included fiestas, picnics, films, dinners, lectures, and variety shows. Dr. Richard Wenzlaff is the director of the chorus.

Instrumental Activities

C.T.C.-North maintains a band, a string ensemble, and a variety of brass and woodwind ensembles open to all students who have had experience in playing band or orchestral instruments. Yearbook

Darlene Jurkowski (Editor-in-Chief)

In the fall of 1963 a number of students thought it was time C.T.C.-North had a yearbook to record its history. The call went out for volunteers to form a staff willing to produce one. In answer, 32 students appeared, and C.T.C.-North was promised a yearbook equal to the high standards mirrored in the modern facilities and able faculty. With editor-in-chief Darlene Jurkowski setting the pace, and able assistance from Mr. Frank J. Fritzmann from the art department, the staff has done its best.

(Editor's Note: Special thanks to N.H. and all who were extra help in meeting deadlines.)

January 20, 1961

"Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans

Let every nation know, whether it wish us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend or oppose any foe in order to assure the survival and success of liberty.

. . . . And so, my fellow Americans: Ask not what your country will do for you—ask what you can do for your country.

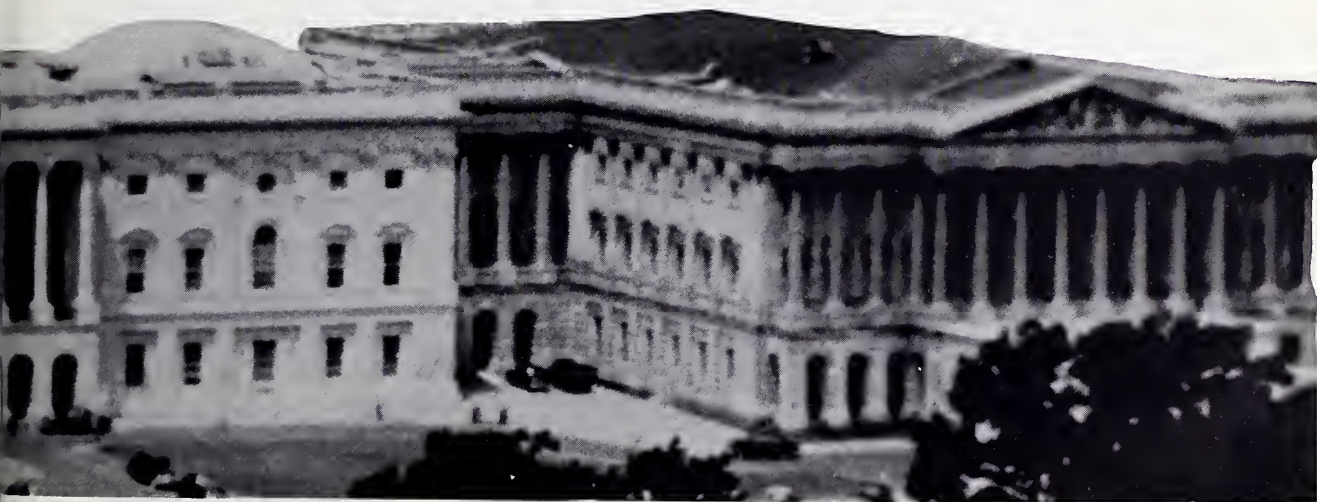

. . . . Let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking His blessing and His help, but knowing that here on earth God's work must truly be our own."

In Memorium

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY
35TH PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES
1917-1963

Acknowledgement
